VACCINE

EXHIBIT CURATED BY DR. ANNE MURPHY

...the most effective way to prevent disease is through vaccination. Vaccines are made from weakened or killed forms of the microbe, its toxins, or a piece of the microbe (usually one of its surface proteins).

...the immune system recognizes the vaccine as a foreign invader and mounts an immune response. This response produces antibodies that can recognize and neutralize the actual microbe if it ever enters the body.

...vaccines are safe and effective. They have saved millions of lives and prevented the spread of many dangerous diseases.
